

Contents

总序	孙有中	iii
导读	邓鹏鸣	vi
Acknowledgements		xv
Part I Introduction		1
Chapter 1 Introducing genre in English for Specific Purposes		3
1 What is a genre?		3
2 Why genre in ESP?		4
3 Early genre work		5
4 Preview of the rest of this book		25
Part II ESP genre analysis		27
Chapter 2 Analyzing genre moves		29
1 What are moves?		29
2 How to do a moves analysis		32
3 Seeking input from specialist informants		41
4 Cross-cultural moves comparisons		44
5 Using and revising existing move models		51
6 Tying it all together: analyzing moves in a TED Talk		53
Chapter 3 Analyzing lexicogrammatical features		55
1 Methods of lexicogrammatical analysis		55
2 Some concordance lines for significant in critique genres in BAWE		63
3 Studying linguistic politeness in genres		69
4 Cross-cultural lexicogrammatical comparisons		73
5 Connecting moves and lexicogrammatical analysis		75
Chapter 4 Analyzing genre contexts		80
1 The value of analyzing genre contexts		81
2 How to study genre contexts		92
3 Gaining access to a context		100

4	Critical ethnography	104
Part III	ESP genre-based learning and teaching	107
Chapter 5	Designing genre-based courses	110
1	The role of instruction in genre learning	110
2	Needs and rights analysis	112
3	How to do a needs analysis for a genre-based course	114
4	From needs analysis to course design	122
5	Four genre-based course designs	130
Chapter 6	Creating and assessing genre-based teaching materials	142
1	Genre-based tasks	142
2	Sequencing genre-based activities	169
3	Text selection	170
4	Assessing the impact of course materials	172
Chapter 7	Exploring future issues: genre play, learning, and transfer	177
1	What is genre play and why study it?	177
2	Forms of genre play	178
3	What makes genre play work?	185
4	Possibilities for future genre play research	189
5	What is genre learning transfer and why study it?	190
6	Current observations of genre learning transfer	190
7	Possibilities for future genre learning transfer research	196
References		202
Index		221